

Iris Reitsma

What is the difference between CS and AI?

I feel like Artificial Intelligence is more about machine learning and computers, while Computational Science also tries to understand the studied systems more. Artificial Intelligence also focusses more on things like voice control in phones, or self-driving cars. Computational Science is more about collecting data and making models and simulations about all kinds of things, like traffic jams and the weather.